Foodborne Pathogens and Disease is currently seeking manuscripts with a dedicated focus on “Food Safety in China: Current Practices and Future Needs.” Original research papers and reviews are welcome. Foodborne Pathogens and Disease spans an array of issues from “farm-to-fork,” and the Journal bridges the gap between science and policy to reduce foodborne illness worldwide

Topics of interest for reviews and research articles include, but are not limited to:

- Overall food safety situations and future needs for control of pathogenic microbes (bacteria, viruses and parasites) along the food production chain in China.
- Prevalence of pathogens: 1) along the food chain in particular foods, 2) in particular production steps, or 3) in specific regions focusing on special problems.
- Advances in methodology, particularly rapid and high-throughput technologies for detection and source tracking.
- Advanced technologies to mitigate food safety risks.
- Risk management or mitigation technologies in particular food production systems (or for specific food products).
- Antimicrobial resistance in food animals and their transmission to humans via foods.
- Integrated food-chain (farm-to-fork) studies for microbial risk.

Advantages of publishing in the Journal include:

- Rapid, high-quality peer review and editorial attention.
- Immediate deposit to PubMed and other indexing services upon online publication.
- Exposure to thousands of thought-leaders in your field, maximizing readers, citations, and downloads.
- Fast Track online-ahead-of-print publication.
- Global availability in over 170 countries.
- Open Access publication options.
- Competitive author benefits program.
